AAPI Community & Philanthropy

Partnerships in Action for Social Change

Omni San Francisco Hotel San Francisco, CA

Join us in San Francisco on April 27-28, 2018 for AAPIP's National Network Convening & Annual Meeting on the theme of "AAPI Community + Philanthropy: Partnerships in Action for Social Change." This one-and-a-half day meeting will bring together more than 100 diverse foundation staff and trustees, individual donors, philanthropic professionals and community leaders from across the United States to network, hear from nationally recognized field experts and participate in field learning tours around the San Francisco Bay Area highlighting Asian American and Pacific Islander (AAPI) social issues, advocacy, and actions being led by philanthropic and community leaders and innovators working in partnership.

Participants will leave with new relationships, strategies, shared knowledge and inspiration for transformative philanthropy that expands and mobilizes resources for AAPI communities.

Field Learning Tours & Special Workshop Session

For the first time, the AAPIP National Network Convening will feature site visits and deeper field immersions to share learning and insights about exemplary funder and community partnerships to advance justice and racial equity for AAPI communities.

Registrants may also sign up for a special 4.5 hour, in-hotel workshop designed for AAPI philanthropic peers and colleagues to explore personal storytelling skills and practices that can inspire and fuel their work as funders and advocates promoting social justice for AAPI communities.

All convening attendees will be asked to select program activities from the list below in order of priority when registering, and we will try to accommodate your choice on a first come, first served basis until each program is fully booked.

Tour 1 Crimmigration: AAPIs at the Intersection of Immigrant Justice and Criminal Justice Reform

This session will include visits to Asian Law Caucus in SF Chinatown and the San Francisco Immigration Court. Since 2000, the population of AAPI incarcerated people has quadrupled. The criminalization of AAPIs, especially Southeast Asian and Pacific Islander youth, has increased, as have immigration-related deportation and detention. How do mass incarceration and criminalization affect AAPIs? How are funders partnering with AAPI communities using an intersectional lens?

Tour 2 Civic Empowerment: Expanding the Toolkit to Build AAPI Movement and Political Power

AAPIs are the fastest growing demographic. How does that translate into civic power? What does it take for AAPI grassroots community-based groups to build political power? How and why do civic empowerment groups use both 501c3 and 501c4 strategies? What is the role of funders in supporting these multi-pronged strategies? This session will include visits organized by San Francisco-based and Oakland-based community organizations.

Tour 3

AAPI Community Redevelopment: The Search for Racial Justice and Cultural Equity in Historic San Francisco Neighborhoods

This session will provide an in depth look at two historic neighborhoods in San Francisco – Chinatown and the South of Market (SOMA) Filipino Cultural Heritage District – through the eyes of government planners, business and nonprofit funders and community activists. How have these community partnerships worked, and what role can foundations play to help advance place-based justice and equity for historic and emerging communities of color?

Special Workshop

Talk Story: Personal Storytelling for Resilience, Resistance and Transformation.

An in-hotel workshop led by the father and daughter team of Richard Woo (CEO, The Russell Family Foundation) and Mei Yook Woo (Seattle food justice advocate) will explore stories that can inspire and guide AAPIs in philanthropy to be more effective advocates for people, places and communities. Working in small groups, facilitators will share storytelling principles, skills and practices learned from working in community-building and philanthropy. Registration is limited to 20 people.

About AAPIP

Founded in 1990, AAPIP is a national membership and philanthropic advocacy organization dedicated to expanding and mobilizing resources for Asian American and Pacific Islander (AAPI) communities to build a more just and equitable society. Our members include foundations and other funding entities as well as professional staff and trustees of grantmaking organizations and individual donors and advisors who support AAPI issues and needs. We engage a diverse philanthropic constituency to work in communities through convening activities, partnerships, research, advocacy, and innovative programs to advance social justice philanthropy.
